The Bay St. Louis Lions Club on Wednesday presented a Certificate of Achievement and gift card to Haydin Michelle Lindberg, a seventh-grade student at Bay-Waveland Middle School, for winning the club's Peace Poster Contest.

Haydin's poster is entitled "Journey to Peace," she said, which is meant to inspire all people "to come together as one nation, with no arguments or wars. We are brothers and sisters and we must walk in peace together."

It features a giant tree growing from the planet, with all the leaves representing different countries.

Haydin was also presented with an Alice Moseley print, courtesy of the Alice Moseley Folk Art Museum, where her poster was on display.

Haydin is the daughter of Sarah and Jacob Lindberg, who accompanied her to the awards ceremony, as did her siblings Jacob, Kalie, Colton and Kelsie; as well as grandfather Harry Rager.

Haydin will now represent the Bay St. Louis Lions Club at the state club's poster contest.

Rural Mississippi is more valuable than ever

Submitted photo

In a survey conducted by MSU scientists, researchers found that individuals purchased property in Mississippi specifically for wildlife-related recreation. One-third of the dollar value of rural lands was due to outdoor recreational potential as reported on 800 properties in the survey.

DR. DARYL JONES
MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

Hunting, fishing, wildlife watching, enjoying nature and other outdoor activities put dollars in Mississippi's coffers. In fact, wildlife-related recreation generates economic impact of about $2.9 million per year in the state.

A portion of the money spent on wildlife-related recreation ends up in small, rural Mississippi communities that would not see these expenditures otherwise.

To enjoy wildlife-related recreation, you need access to public or private land or water. Oftentimes, individuals will buy land for hunting, fishing or just to build a house on their own piece of "the great outdoors" in Mississippi. This trend has influenced the value of rural lands, particularly properties with ponds to fish, beautiful sites to build homes, and productive habitats for game and nongame wildlife species.

MSU scientists conducted a survey with representatives of the Federal Land Bank of Mississippi and Mossy Oak Properties. The researchers found that individuals purchased property in Mississippi specifically for wildlife-related recreation. In fact, one-third of the dollar value of rural lands (or $634 per acre, on average) was due to outdoor recreational potential, as reported on 800 Mississippi properties in our survey.

Most of the properties were forested with a mixture of stands that included bottomland hardwood trees, mixed pine-hardwood forests, upland hardwood forests and pine stands. Tracts also included agricultural lands predominately in row crops, as well as lands that were fallow, comprised of roads or contained supplemental plantings for wildlife.

Based on the survey, buyers look for specific attributes when purchasing recreational properties. For example, forests with hardwood trees provide excellent habitats for a diversity of wildlife species, both game and nongame. Forested tracts provide excellent cover and produce food as hard mast, such as oak acorns or hickory nuts. Hunters value these land types because of the prevalence of game species, such as white-tailed deer and wild turkey.

Additionally, some amenities increased land sales prices, particularly roads and cabins. Only about 14% of properties sold for wildlife recreation had been leased for hunting in the past. However, these tracts leased for $21 per acre as compared to $12 per acre, on average, for Sixteenth Section lands across Mississippi.

The higher value for leases on these study tracts was due to the prominence of mature hardwood forests, habitat management practices conducted for wildlife and amenities present on the land. Landowners who own similar lands in Mississippi more often can lease or sell these properties for significantly higher values.

So, here is the take-home message: Quality private lands that are mostly forested with a mix of open spaces and pastures that support diverse wildlife and ponds for fishing are often golden for

United Way named America's 'Favorite Charity'

SEA COAST ECHO

United Way Worldwide ranked number one in the list of America's Favorite Charities recently published by The Chronicle of Philanthropy.

The yearly list identifies the non-profit organizations Americans are most willing to support and is based on total cash support. The list focuses extensively on cash and stock gifts received directly from individuals but also factors in gifts from corporations and foundations.

In the United States, there are nearly 1,200 United Way offices, which operate as a coalition to pool efforts in fundraising and support. The local affiliate for Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone counties is United Way of South Mississippi, which operates out of Gulfport.

As the local affiliate, UWSM rallies resources to improve the health, education and financial stability of all people within south Mississippi. The organization accomplishes its mission by awarding grants and operating programs that help meet critical community needs.

UWSM awards two-year grants and short-term emergency and emerging needs grants. In July, the organization awarded $650,000 in community impact grants to 11 area nonprofits, which help fund programs like Project Learn at the Boys & Girls Clubs of the Gulf Coast, the mobile food pantry program at Feeding the Gulf Coast and the children's program at the Gulf Coast Center for Nonviolence.

Additionally, UWSM operates PreK4Ward, which offers free preschool to 140 children; savings programs, including the FamilyWise prescription discount card and free tax preparation services; Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, which delivers one book each month to children from birth to age 5; United Way Readers, which pairs adult volunteers with children to provide reading practice; and the Little Free Library program, which promotes neighborhood book exchanges through free public bookcases.

UWSM also leads annual school supply, diaper and coat drives.

"Our grants, programs and annual drives are made possible by generous donors, who believe in our mission and know the United Way name can be trusted," said UWSM CEO Kathy Springer. "The number one rank shows that donors can give to United Way knowing their money will be used wisely."

Ninety-nine cents of every dollar given to UWSM is reinvested in the community, and donors can give to the organization directly or through payroll contributions. Employers interested in running workplace campaigns are encouraged to contact LeAnna Saucier, resource development director, at lmorgan@united-waysm.org.

To donate online or to learn more about the organization, visit www.unitedwaysm.org. UWSM is in the Knight Nonprofit Center, 11975 Seaway Road, Suite B170, in Gulfport, and may be contacted by phone at (228) 896-2213.

MDEQ lifts ane beach water contact advisory in Waveland

Two other warnings still in effect

SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ), through its Beach Monitoring Program, lifted a water contact advisory Thursday for Station 3 (Waveland Beach) Water samples at this station show the area has attained acceptable bacteria levels.

Advisories remain in effect for Station 10B (East Courthouse Road Beach) and Station 15 (Shearwater Beach).

The advisory is lifted for:

Station 3 -- Waveland Beach -- the extent is from Oak Blvd. east to Favre St.

Advisories remain in effect for:

Station 10B -- East Courthouse Road Beach (Gulfport) -- the extent is from Courthouse Rd. east to Tegarden Rd.

Station 15 -- Shearwater Beach (Ocean Springs) -- the extent is from Weeks

Bayou east to Ashley Place.

These segments of beach are not closed; however, there may be an increased risk of illness associated with swimming in these areas. When water samples show that levels are safe for human contact, the advisories will be lifted.

An advisory is issued when bacteria levels exceed water quality criteria and pose an increased risk to human health.

Under the Mississippi Beach Monitoring Program, water is tested for the presence of Enterococcus bacteria, which is an indicator for bacteria pollution. When an advisory is issued, water contact should be avoided. Swimmers are reminded that the Beach Task Force has a standing recommendation that swimming not occur during or within 24 hours of a significant rainfall event.

State election results

Mississippi's local and state elections are done for another four years. The Republican Party stays in power.

Unlike many elections around the world, few people questioned the validity of our state's election process. It is a great blessing to live in a state and country that has a legitimate and trusted democratic process.

George Washington in his farewell address warned the nation of the dangers of political parties, but the nation didn't listen. Political parties are fundamental to our electoral process, even though they are private organizations with no constitutional basis.

The whole idea of a political party is kind of disturbing: "Let's form our own private organization and take over the government." The Constitution protects our freedom to form whatever private associations we want and that includes private associations designed to influence elections.

Our two-party system has been a source of great national stability over the years. It takes 50 percent plus one vote to gain power, so both parties are hyperfocused on that equation. As a result, national elections have gone back-and-forth like a seesaw.

If one party gets too extreme, it loses power. Since the whole point of a political party is to take power, this becomes a self-correcting process. Parties, by their very nature, will run off fringe elements in order to win.

The nature of a two-party system creates strange bedfellows. Stitching together 50 percent of the electorate requires some creativity, especially in our nation of rambunctious, high-strung individuals. Americans won't sit by idly if they are discontent with the status quo. That's how we all got here.

Republicans, for instance, are supposed to be more anti-government, yet Republicans have embraced a variety of socially conservative laws that intrude on individual liberty.

Meanwhile, Democrats are generally pro-government and distrustful of the free market, yet the party is more socially liberal and wants the government out of our bedrooms and out of our recreational substance decisions.

According to the latest Gallup poll, 31 percent of Americans consider themselves Democrats, 29 percent consider themselves Republicans and 40 percent are inde-

Wicker Pushes Legislation Instead of Partisanship

Fund the Military, Update Trade Agreements, and Avoid a Shutdown

Although partisan fights are consuming much of Washington's attention, there is a lot to celebrate. The economy continues what has become the longest expansion in our nation's history, unemployment is at near-record lows, and wages rise every month, particularly for low-skill workers.

Tax cuts and less burdensome regulations are giving business owners the chance to expand operations and create new jobs. This progress is encouraging. It shows how free-market principles and hard work are making our country stronger.

FUND AMERICA'S DEFENSE

I wish I could also provide an encouraging report on this year's Congress, where important work seems mired in partisan differences. Vital legislation involving spending priorities, national defense, and trade has

From the Senate
by Roger Wicker
U.S. Senator

been cleared by congressional committees but has failed to see the light of day in the full Senate and House.

Chief among our disappointments this year has been the inability to pass appropriation bills. With the beginning of the fiscal year on October 1, Congress has been compelled to enact temporary spending bills – known as continuing resolutions (CRs) – to keep agencies open according to last year's appropriations.

This practice is wasteful for all agencies, but especially for the military. Under the current CR, the Pentagon is being forced to spend money on programs that are outdated and would be abandoned under revised plans. The Department of Defense had specified $4 billion in unnecessary procurements to cut over the next year, but cannot do so under a CR. That means that our military is now having to use taxpayer dollars to buy things it no longer needs. At the same time, new national security initiatives are having to wait.

The path out of this appalling situation is clear. The Senate has already approved a defense authorization on an overwhelmingly bipartisan basis. Now the House needs to set aside politics and come to the table in good faith to debate priorities and funding. Sending a bipartisan National Defense Authorization Act to the president for his signature for the 59th consecutive year and then appropriating funding would build positive momentum for other issues facing Congress.

LEGISLATIVE OPPORTUNITIES

Members could then focus on other government agencies and services, like the Department of Agriculture, Department of Homeland Security, and our national parks, each of which require their own legislation.

Congress should be able to do this by November 21 and avoid another government shutdown. If we can do so without extending the current CR, then the legislative branch will have accomplished vital work and gained traction to

Conservation Buffers

A conservation buffer is a strip or parcel of land that exists next to environmentally sensitive areas such as wetlands, streams, or rivers. Filter strips, field borders, grassed waterways, field windbreaks, shelterbelts, contour grass strips, and riparian (stream-side) buffers are all examples of conservation buffers. Conservation buffers conserve soil, enhance fish and wildlife habitat, conserve biodiversity, beautify the landscape, and improve water quality.

According to Steven Byrd, Farm Bill conservation program specialist of Wildlife Mississippi, "As the original stewards of our land, farmers and landowners have long known that the best management practices include the use of conservation buffer strips to control runoff that impairs the quality of our Mississippi's waters."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Natural Resources

Wildlife Mississippi

Conservation Service (NRCS) and USDA's Farm Service Agency have several programs that provide incentive payments to farmers and landowners for establishing buffers, including the continuous sign-up option of the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) and the Environmental Quality Incentives Program.

Land enrolled as conservation buffers in CRP will receive an annual rental payment. This payment is based on the relative productivity of the soil type being offered and the average dry land cash rental rate for comparable land in the county. A 20 percent incentive is added to the annual rental rate for field windbreaks, grassed waterways, filter strips, and riparian buffers. A 10 percent incentive is added to the annual rental rate for land within designated wellhead protection areas.

Cost-sharing, at a rate of 50 percent, is available to establish the desired cover. Practices eligible for cost-sharing include, but are not limited to, the following: site preparation; temporary cover until permanent cover is established; grading or shaping; seeds, trees, or shrubs; plastic mulch; and supplemental irrigation or fencing. Contracts under the continuous CRP sign-up are 10 to 15 years in length, depending on the practice.

Annual rental payments are made each year. Cost-share payments are made after the approved practices are completed.

Other programs of the USDA can also help with the cost of implementing buffer practices. These include the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program and the Wetland Reserve Easement program of the Agricultural Conservation Easements Program..

For information on any of these programs, contact your local USDA Service Center or conservation district office.

You don't have to make a competitive offer as required of other programs. Your offer will be accepted if all eligibility requirements are met.

Wicker Leads Commerce Committee Passage of Fishery Disasters Bill

Fishery FUNDD Act Would Expedite Fishery Disaster Relief

SEA COAST ECHO

U.S. Senator Roger Wicker, R-Miss., chairman of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, today commended committee passage of the "Fishery Failures: Urgently Needed Disaster Declarations (Fishery FUNDD) Act." Wicker's legislation would reform the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA) Fishery Resource Disaster Relief program of the National Marine Fisheries Service, making improvements to expedite relief for fishermen during fishery disasters.

"People along Mississippi's Gulf Coast have seen firsthand the wide-ranging effects a fishery disaster can have on a local community," Wicker said. "This legislation would make important reforms to the federal government's disaster declaration process, ensuring those affected receive relief more quickly. This vote affirms the importance of getting this legislation to the President's desk without delay."

Wicker's Fishery FUNDD Act would streamline the fisheries disaster declaration process by holding the federal government accountable to deadlines to get funding distributed in a timely manner. It would also allow for disaster funding to go directly to members of the fishing community.

Among other provisions, the bill would:

Maintain the authority of the Secretary of Commerce to determine the existence of a fishery disaster, after which the Secretary would make funds available to be used by state or regional groups to assess the impacts of the disaster and conduct other activities that support fishing activity;

Assign a 120-day timeline for the Secretary to evaluate a request, either upon receipt or immediately after the close of the fishery season; and

List the eligible uses of fishery disaster relief funds, including direct payments to affected members of the fishing community, habitat restoration and conservation, management improvements, job training, public information campaigns, and preventative measures for future disasters. It would prioritize hiring fishermen displaced by the fishery disaster for these tasks.

ty.

I foresee that having your own piece of rural Mississippi will only become more valuable in the future. I'm often reminded of a quote by Gerald O'Hara in speaking to his daughter Katie

Scarlett in the movie "Gone With The Wind" about his love for Tara: "Why, land is the only thing in the world worth workin' for because it's the only thing that lasts."

It is hard to argue with such wisdom.

hours, if possible.

- Secure wallets or purses so they cannot be grabbed or lifted.
- Put the purse strap over your body and your wallet in a front pocket.
- Don't carry large amounts of cash; safeguard your credit cards; and protect your PIN when you use a keypad.
- Park in well-lit areas and make a note of the lot and row number to make sure you remember where you parked.
- Avoid parking next to vehicles with tinted windows.
- Have your keys in hand for quick entry when returning to a parked car.
- Keep an eye out for suspicious people or activity.
- Keep packages and valuables out of sight. When your car is filled with goodies, do a home drop-off and then return for additional shopping.

Tips for package delivery

Online shopping creates deliveries, and the holidays bring out "porch thieves" who comb neighborhoods looking for packages.

Police urge these steps:

- Track deliveries by using email notifications.

- Have the package picked up or delivered to a friend or relative who is available at delivery time.

- Have deliveries sent to our office or workplace, or have them shipped to a location where the package can be held for pickup.

Tips to avoid burglary

- Once your house is full of gifts, the risks aren't over. You might be advertising that your home is now a good target for burglars. Here are some tips:

- Don't advertise what you bought or received by leaving boxes at the curb. Break down boxes and dispose of them quickly.
- Use caution on social media -- don't post about the great gift you received.

If you're traveling

- Have someone you trust check on your house while you're gone.
- Stop or have your newspaper or mail picked up.
- Set an automatic timer for your lights and consider a timer to turn on a TV or radio to make it sound like someone is home.
- Set alarms and double lock doors.

Another parent said that even though students are allowed to wear jackets, they must find somewhere to store them because they "cannot go in the classroom."

"My child has lost sweaters because there's no locker and their back bags are overstuffed so they can't put their jacket in their back bag, it's a problem," another parent stated.

Another parent told the board that her child has an autoimmune disorder.

"She has temperature regulation issues and in order for her to wear a coat in between classes, she now has to get a doctor's excuse," she said. "Which is going to now put a stigma on my child, which she already faces. She already faces challenges now, everybody's going to know the kids that have medical issues are going to stand out because they get their doctor's note to be able to wear a coat."

In between classes the high school students go outside, she added.

BWSD Superintendent Dr. Sandra Reed addressed the parents.

Reed said that she thinks that "our track record here shows that we genuinely try to do what's in the best interests of students."

"Do we sometimes make mistakes and make calls that ultimately work out not in the way they were intended?" she said. "Of course we do."

Reed also said that the district and parents are all "reasonable people" with the "best interests of students at heart."

"I think we need to agree to step back, take a look at the policy, take a look at the intention of the policy, see what parts of the policy are working well and what parts are not working well and make some adjustments," Reed said. "Nobody goes into the business of educating students to see how uncomfortable and how much we can inconvenience parents and our students."

Reed said she would like to take a week and look at the adjustments made to the policy and make further recommendations about modifications.

Reed said there are some "safety concerns," with regards to clothing.

"You go home and Google YouTube and look at some videos of students that have on jackets that are zipped up," she said. "I'm not talking about trench coats, I'm talking about jackets. And then they start pulling weapons out. There's one out there where a child pulls 42 weapons out of a jacket that if you would have passed him in the hall, you would have sworn he didn't have a single thing in there. So it's a very difficult task to balance all these concerns. So, I'm going to ask you to trust us. We've heard what you said. Let's take a look at it and see if we can't arrive at a spot that we all feel is best for kids."

Cast-A-Way

I was fortunate enough to grow up here, on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. My family's home was about a block off the beach, in Waveland. Me and my buddies spent countless days playing on the beach. Skim boarding, fishing, crabbing and my favorite, throwing the cast net.

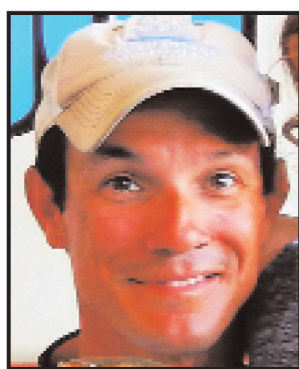

I guess it's the excitement of not knowing what's gonna show up,

In case you were wondering, here are the names of the fish in the photo:

Menhaden (pogie)
Mullet
Spot
croaker
Leather jacket

As always, have fun and be safe

SHORE THING FISHING REPORT

by Capt. Sonny Schindler

after each throw.

I was on a trip at Cat Island, and we needed big baits for redfish, sharks and jacks. I was throwing the cast net and catching all kinds of different species. It brought me back to the mid 1980's, playing on those beaches in Waveland. I actually stopped throwing the net and laid out some of the different species. This is what getting outdoors, and on the water is all about. Seeing all the different creatures, learning the names, just makes you such a better fisherman/hunter.

So the next chance you get, break out the cast net. Bring the kiddos, and the newbies, and throw that cast net. Trust me, those kids and first timers will be blown away.

SSC Marine Science Program Continues to Contribute to the MS Coastal Environment

SEA COAST ECHO

Saint Stanislaus marine science students continue to contribute to the coastal environment of Mississippi through a variety of projects and initiatives, such as oyster gardening and nurdle hunting. Non-commercial oyster aquaculture, better known as oyster gardening, is a program that works to aid in the restoration of oyster reefs. Oyster reef restoration leads to improved water quality, reduction of coastal erosion, and habitats for over 300 species of fish and invertebrates. In 2017, the Saint Stanislaus Marine Science program connected with the Mississippi Oyster Gardening Program (MOGP) and remains a vital member. Over the last three years, Saint Stanislaus marine science students have grown over 17,000 oysters. Oysters are later collected and planted on restoration reefs in cooperation with the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (MDR). Each week, marine science students clean (of sediment and algae) and measure the oysters in addition to recording the data on-site. Throughout the oyster gardening season, students maintain, record, and observe the oysters growing and changing. “Oyster gardening allows for students to be good stewards of their environment,” says Rayne Palmer, Mississippi Oyster Gardening Program Coordinator. While oyster gardening is a significant initiative for the Saint Stanislaus marine science program, students also participate in a variety of other fieldwork, programs, and projects. Saint Stanislaus is the only school in Mississippi that provides a unique environment for students to engage in marine science fieldwork on campus. Just last year, the Saint Stanislaus Marine Science program joined forces with the University of Texas Austin in their Nurdle Patrol project. A nurdle is considered a microplastic form of marine debris that is found washed up on beaches worldwide. To date, Saint Stanislaus marine science students have collected over 23,000 nurdles on campus alone. With a slogan of “it only takes two hands,” the Saint Stanislaus Marine Science program hopes to continue its mission in the conservation of marine life, one oyster garden, and nurdle, at a time. About the Mississippi Oyster Gardening Program Established in 2016, the Mississippi Oyster Gardening Program is a volunteer-based project, which focuses on education, restoration and enhancement, and research by bringing the reef to the people. The program is made possible by the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Extension. For more information, please visit www.msogp.com About Nurdle Patrol Nurdle Patrol is a citizen science project run by the Mission-Aransas National Estuarine Research Reserve (Reserve) at the University of Texas Marine Science Institute in Port Aransas, Texas. # Cold Weather Calls for Hot Soup

BY LINDA BIGLER
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

As I am writing this column, the temperature is hovering around 45 degrees which means it is perfect soup weather. Be that as it may, by the time you read this, it could be swimsuit weather. Such is the quirky climate in which we live. Here are a few uncomplicated recipes for soup to warm you when the weather permits.

CREAM OF PUMPKIN SOUP

4 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, finely chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 cups chicken broth
4 (16 ounce) cans pumpkin (do not use the pumpkin pie pumpkin)
1 cup half and half
1 teaspoon salt
One half teaspoon black pepper

One half teaspoon grated nutmeg

One fourth teaspoon cayenne pepper

One fourth teaspoon cayenne pepper

Sour cream (garnish)

4 tablespoons chopped flat leaf parsley (garnish)

Over medium heat, melt the butter in a Dutch oven. Add the onion and sauté until tender. Add the garlic and cook for an additional minute. Stir in the chicken broth, bring to a boil, lower to a simmer, cover, and cook for 25 minutes. Add the pumpkin and stir until smooth. Add the remaining ingredients, except the garnishes. Stir constantly until ingredients are thoroughly heated. Serve at once, garnished with sour cream and chopped parsley.

Serves 8

The next recipe contains bacon, the food of the gods. Its smoky goodness pairs well with the humble potato. A food processor, standard blender, or a handheld stick blender will be needed.

BACON AND POTATO SOUP

4 tablespoons butter
2 medium onions, chopped

2 pounds Yukon or other golden potatoes, peeled and sliced

3 cups chicken broth

3 cups whole milk

1 cup half and half

One half teaspoon pepper

10 slices cooked bacon, crumbled

3 green onions, thinly sliced for garnish

Over medium heat, melt the butter in a Dutch oven. Add the chopped onions and sauté until tender, do not allow to brown. Add the potatoes and chicken broth, bring to a boil, and reduce to a simmer. Cover and cook for about 25 minutes or until potatoes are very tender. Put the potato mixture in a food processor or a blender (this will need to be done in two batches) or using a handheld blender, blend until smooth. If using a food processor standard blender, return the mixture to the Dutch oven. Stir in the milk, cream, and pepper. Heat the soup mixture over medium heat, but do not allow it to boil. Stir in the bacon, taste for seasoning, and serve at once garnished with the parsley.

Serves 6 to 8

News flash: Not all cream of mushroom soup comes from a can.

CREAM OF FRESH MUSHROOM SOUP

4 tablespoons butter

1-pound baby bella or white button mushrooms, cleaned and thinly sliced (for more flavor use Shitake mushrooms, not the stems)

2 cloves garlic, minced
4 tablespoons all-purpose flour

2 cups chicken broth

2 cups half and half

One fourth cup finely chopped fresh flat leaf parsley

One half teaspoon salt

One fourth teaspoon pepper

One fourth teaspoon grated nutmeg

One fourth cup dry vermouth

In a large saucepan over medium heat, melt the butter, add the mushrooms and garlic; cook for about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in the flour and cook, stirring constantly. Slowly add the chicken broth, bring to a boil while stirring constantly. Stir until mixture begins to thicken. Add the milk, reduce the heat and simmer for an additional 5 minutes. Stir in the parsley, salt, pepper, nutmeg, and vermouth. Heat through, but do not allow to boil.

Serves 6

Enjoy one or more of these soups when the temperature once again drops. For those of you who avoid animal products, vegetable broth can be substituted for the chicken broth. As far as I am concerned, there is absolutely no substitute for real bacon, but that is a personal choice. As a celebrity chef once said, "I love vegetarians; they are delicious."

'Was My Dog Poisoned?'

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: We have three dogs that freely roam our 26-acre property almost year-round. In August, our youngest dog, "Striper," went out for a couple of hours and when he returned he was panting heavily. He began drooling and then vomiting. As we got ready to take him to the vet, he collapsed and stopped breathing. We weren't able to revive him. Our vet said he could have eaten something poisonous.

Since then I've walked or ridden all over our property to see what he might have eaten, but I've found nothing. My neighbors couldn't have given him something bad. What could have happened? — Mystified in Northern New Hampshire

DEAR MYSTIFIED: First, I am truly sorry that you lost Striper so tragically. Finding the reason may require a little more investigation.

Did the veterinarian give any indication of what the poison may have been? Did you look at what Striper vomited up just before he collapsed, or take a sample to the vet? While it's not always possible to tell without more testing, looking for clues to what happened can help to keep your two surviving dogs safe.

Some wild plants are poisonous to dogs, though the worst types usually taste terrible. Standing water with a blue-green algae bloom is a possibility; this cyanobacteria, deadly to pets, often blooms in Southern states in late summer but is creeping northward due to climate change. Household garbage may have cleaning chemicals or old medications mixed in with tempting food scraps. Could old antifreeze have been dumped near the edge of your property? Consider any and all possibilities.

Meanwhile, you can keep your other dogs safe by securing outdoor garbage can lids, separating household cleaning containers from regular trash and monitoring the dogs' outdoor roaming more closely.

Meet Zena. She is one beautiful gal! Look at those beautiful eyes and remarkable coat. Both are the exquisite traits of the Catahoula Leopard Dog or Cur, the state dog of Louisiana. This 1 year old may also have some Terrier in the mix, but we find the combination irresistible. Zena is super sweet and loves people. She made fast friends with the other dogs in her living area, and made many new pals at Pet Smart, so we feel that she could easily join a home with existing family dogs. A home with a fenced back yard would be ideal, as she loves romping-n-playing in our doggie play yard. She would be an outstanding family pet, or the loyal BFF of a single person, couple, or active retirees. She enjoys going for walks, lots of playtime, and quality time with her human friends. But, most of all, she loves being a lap dog! This smart girl sits for treats, and learned the command in just one afternoon. She is so smart! We are unsure if Zena is house or crate trained, but she keeps her kennel clean, and did not have any accidents at our off-site adoption event. Come by the shelter, 7175 Texas Flat Road, Kiln, to meet this wonderful girl, and you'll know why we adore her so much. Call 228 466 4516 for more information, and visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Zena, and of the many other wonderful, adoptable fur-babies looking for their forever homes.

LOOKING FOR BARGAINS AT GARAGE SALES

BY GARY ANDREWS

GARY@GADEVOTIONALS.COM

Many years ago I lived next door to a family that was having a garage sale. They had a lot of neat stuff and a good bit of it sold, however, there was one item no one looked at. It was a lawn mower deck without an engine. It was a brand name deck and was in tremendous shape.

Speaking with my neighbor afterwards he told me how surprised he was when the mower deck didn't sell. He couldn't understand why someone wouldn't jump all over this deck but I understood when he told me how much he wanted for it. It was way overpriced for a garage sale.

People go to garage sales looking for bargains; good stuff at cheap prices. It seems that in today's society that all of us are looking for handouts or getting by with the lowest price we can. Many times we find a deal and pay for it only to find out when we get home that we didn't really get what we paid for. Many times we find tremendous products at low prices and get the deal of the life time.

How many of us treat our spiritual life the same way? Are we looking at finding acceptance through our churches, neighbors, or our friends by doing or acting in a way that the Lord doesn't want? Do we treat all of these as if they were garage sales and really don't want to pay a big price for being a Christian?

Anyone can say they are a Christian but have they paid the price of what it cost? For people who have accepted Christ as their personal Savior and asked Him to be leader in their life there is no cost. He freely gives to all who will accept Him by faith and will reside in them through the Holy Spirit and will guide them in all of their thoughts and actions.

Romans 8:9 tells us, "You, however, are controlled not by the sinful nature but by the Spirit, if the Spirit of God lives in you. And if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to Christ."

We can't treat our spiritually like a garage sale. It is not something that you go and buy one day for a cheap price and then go back to your worldly ways. Yet, there are many Christians that believe they can do this and live for the world during the week only to find their Christian values on Sunday.

Just as my friend with the mower deck thought it was a great deal, it probably was for that one person looking for that exact item. Most people go to garage sales not expecting to find anything but will end up purchasing items due to the low prices on a valued item. Christianity is available anywhere, anytime. Christianity is not a garage sale item or something you just happen upon. It has the lowest cost for you because it is free for the asking. Jesus had paid the bill in full for all of our shortcomings and sins and He wants us to live with Him when He decides to take us from our earthly home.

Think about this the next time you go shopping whether it is a garage sale or at the mall. There may be someone close to you looking for the greatest gift of all and you may be the very one that can lead them to Christ. When you have Christ you have eternity. What more could there be?

Prayer: Thank you Lord for opportunity of knowing you through faith. I believe that you went to the cross to save me from my sins and I look forward to the day that I can be with you in heaven. Amen.
